3 Reading: Two Years Ago in AlUla On my own · وحدي

قبل عامين في العُلا

Read the Reading Lab text again. Answer in full sentences.

Two years ago, Sara's school went to AlUla, and she still talks about it. Last week, she found the photos on her old phone. "Noor, look!" she said. "That was the best trip of my life."

They traveled by bus for a whole night and arrived at sunrise. The first stop was Hegra. The Nabataeans carved the tombs into the rock two thousand years ago; the same people built Petra. The guide said the city was a stop on the old spice road. Sara looked up at the huge stone and felt very small.

Noor forgot most of the second day, but Sara remembered everything. In the afternoon they visited the old town with its mud houses. In the evening, they sat under the Elephant Rock. It was dark, the stars were bright, and the desert was completely silent.

"Earlier today, I checked the website," Sara said. "There is a new trip in March." Noor smiled. "Two years ago we were kids. Now we can take better photos." They booked their places that night. Some memories deserve a second visit.

1 When did Sara go to AlUla, and how did they travel?

2 Who built the tombs at Hegra, and when?

3 Why did Sara feel 'very small' in front of the tombs?

4 Tell me about a trip you took a long time ago. What do you remember?
