2 Grammar: Comparatives & Superlatives with Long Adjectives · وحدي On my own

المقارنة والتفضيل مع الصفات الطويلة

Comparatives & Superlatives with Long Adjectives. For longer adjectives (usually 2+ syllables), we use "more" for comparatives and "the most" for superlatives, instead of -er/-est. Short adjectives keep -er / the -est (cheap -> cheaper, the cheapest), and a few are irregular (good -> better, the best).

للصفات الأطول (عادة مقطعان أو أكثر)، نستخدم "more" للمقارنة و"the most" للتفضيل، بدلا من -er/-est. الصفات القصيرة تبقى مع -er / the -est (cheap ← cheaper, the cheapest)، وبعضها شاذ (good ← better, the best).

3 Reading: Metro or Car? On my own · وحدي

المترو أم السيارة؟

Read the Reading Lab text again. Answer in full sentences.

When the Riyadh Metro opened in December 2024, Sara's family had a debate. Her father loves his car. It is comfortable, it is convenient, and nobody else is in it. Her mother thinks the metro is the most reasonable option: it is cheaper, it is faster at rush hour, and you can read on it.

So Sara tested both. On Sunday she went to the library by car. It took forty-five minutes because the highway was full. Her father was patient, but the car was not moving. On Monday she took the metro: twenty-two minutes, a cool station, a seat by the window and three chapters of her book.

The car is more flexible, Sara wrote in her notebook. You can leave whenever you want, and you can carry heavy things. But the metro is more reliable, more affordable and far more efficient during the day. The stations are the most beautiful buildings in the city.

Her conclusion surprised her father. "Metro to school, car to Grandmother's house," she said. "Grandmother lives far from a station, and she sends us home with twelve boxes of food." Her father smiled. The most useful answer, he admitted, is usually 'both'.

1 How long did each trip to the library take?

2 Why does Sara still choose the car for Grandmother's house?

3 Her father says 'nobody else is in it.' Why does he like that? Is it a good reason?

4 Compare two ways to travel in your city. Use three comparatives.
