Hi, I'm Noor! Get ready to tell real stories about your own life.

The past tense arrives here: what happened, when, and why. Your child moves from describing the present to genuinely telling stories -- their weekend, a trip, a party, a mistake -- in connected, real narrative.

By the end of this level, your child can:

- Talk about what happened yesterday or last weekend
- Ask and answer questions in the past ("Did you...?")
- Describe how something was and why it happened
- Tell a story with sequence ("and then...")
- Describe what was happening at a specific moment
- Talk about a trip, a party, or a memorable day
- Interview someone and recap a story

Grammar

19 distinct structures across the level — past simple, past questions, past continuous, and connecting words, building toward real storytelling.

NEW

Real scene illustrations

Every one of Level 5's 20 lessons now has an illustrated scene of Omar, Sara, Noor, Ziad and Hamad acting out that lesson's language -- the sentence sits in a caption box with the key words highlighted, an Arabic line underneath, and a play button to hear it.

NEW

A richer trial class

The free trial class now opens with a real-life question, includes a role-play dialogue from the level, a sentence-builder, graded grammar and vocabulary checks, and an open discussion moment -- not just vocabulary cards and buzzer games.

NEW

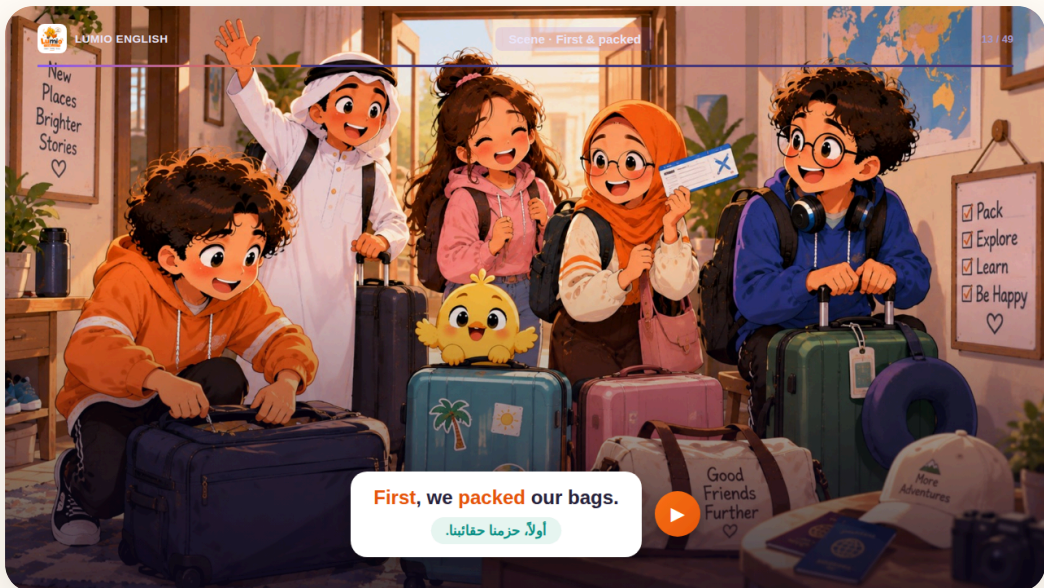

"Today I Learned" shows every sentence pattern

The recap at the end of each lesson now lists every sentence pattern used in that lesson, wherever it appeared -- not only one example.

NEW

A clear order for work between classes

The closing slide of every lesson gives the same steps in the same order: interactive homework first, then print the worksheet, writing sheet and flashcards, memorise the words, then play the bonus game.

Once upon a time — The classic way storytellers begin a tale.

Blast from the past — Something that reminds you of an earlier time.

Long story short — A quick way to summarize something long.

A tip for home: the Hub isn't graded and has no quiz -- it's a calm space for your child to browse freely.

What it looks like to explore

Each theme opens as a full grid of picture cards -- every word shown with a real illustration, its Arabic meaning and a play button. Your child can browse the Telling My Story Hub freely at any time, outside lesson time, and every card they tap plays the word aloud.

A real theme page from the Telling My Story Hub, exactly as your child sees it

Tip: the Hub is the best place for a quick review before a class -- five minutes browsing the theme of the last lesson is worth more than re-reading a word list.

A printable page for every single lesson

Beyond the screen, every one of Level 5's 20 lessons comes with its own homework sheet and flashcard set, ready to print.

Who they're for, and why

Writing practice: your child writes three original sentences using that day's real grammar pattern -- for example, Past Simple regular verbs in Lesson 1. Since this level's whole focus is telling real stories about the past, this is where your child actually practices narrating their own weekend, not just recognizing past-tense forms on screen.

Flashcards: every card shows the picture and English word on one side and the Arabic translation on the other. That means either parent can quiz their teen at home, even without speaking English themselves -- a quick flip-through is real, screen-free repetition that keeps vocabulary fresh alongside the grammar work.

Story Detective, this level's bonus game

A detective mystery theme covering three kinds of clues: finding the right meaning of a word, judging whether a witness got a translation right, and figuring out what was really said next in an overheard conversation.

Witness testimony: two overheard lines, three possible things said next

How to play

1. Find the evidence: an Arabic word or phrase is shown with three English options -- tap the one that matches its meaning.
2. Verify the clue: a witness claims an Arabic phrase means a certain English word -- your child judges True or False.
3. Witness testimony: two lines of a real overheard conversation are shown, and your child figures out what was really said next from three options. Every confirmed answer gets pinned to the case file as evidence; by the end, the full case file is revealed -- "mystery solved!"
